

Case File 08

“Paid for it. Own the copyright?”: script, description, thumbnails and SEO

Prepared 4 October 2026

How this follows the brief

- Multi-colour slides, calmer (v2): the colour now changes once per section instead of every scene (5 changes, not 17), so the text stays the focus: deep blue & magenta (hook), deep teal (the law), black & lime (quiz), magenta & navy (why it matters), deep violet (the fix), then blue & magenta again for the close. Darker backgrounds, no pattern, bright colour only on key words. The scene table shows the colour for each.
- New hook: “You paid £800 for your logo. So why might it still belong to the designer?”: money first, then a surprise.
- New format: a 4-question “Who owns it?” quiz with (×) / (✓) reveals; viewers guess before each answer lands, which helps people keep watching.
- New fonts: Bebas Neue, DM Sans, DM Mono and Fraunces italic (not used in Cases 01–07).
- Language & SEO: conversational British English (“eight hundred quid”, “it’s not too late to ask”); researched phrases (“who owns the copyright”, “logo copyright”, “commissioned work”, “copyright assignment”) spoken and shown early and used in the title, description and tags. Authority: a direct quote from GOV.UK’s Intellectual Property Office.
- Conversion: “Which one surprised you? Comment 1–4” prompt plus “dogetlawyer.com, link in bio” with a LINK IN BIO button.
- Compliance: no prices or offers, legal points hedged as “general position”, all names/figures fictional and labelled, standard fine print on the closing card.

Before posting

- ☐ Record the voiceover (clean read on page 4) and drop it onto the silent audio track.
- ☐ Make sure dogetlawyer.com is the link in bio.
- ☐ Upload the thumbnail / vertical cover and paste the title, description, tags and pinned comment.
- ☐ Check average % viewed after 24 hours.

Files

Item	File (repo: sobarslap/DGL_private)
Video	<code>videos/dogetlawyer_case-file-08_v2_1080x1920.mp4</code> (1:45, 1080×1920, silent track for V0)
Thumbnails	<code>thumbnails/case-08_thumbnail_1280x720.png</code> • <code>thumbnails/case-08_cover_1080x1920.png</code>

Paid for it. Do you own the copyright?

"You paid £800 for your logo. So why might it still belong to the designer?"

Video file	videos/dogetlawyer_case-file-08_v2_1080x1920.mp4
Spec	1:45 (105 s) · 1080×1920 vertical · 30 fps · captions burned in · silent audio track ready for voiceover
Format	Hook → "paying ≠ owning" → GOV.UK quote → "Who owns it?" quiz (logo, website, product photos, staff's work) → permission vs ownership → why it bites → the fix (written assignment) → product → comment prompt → link in bio
Look	Multi-colour, but the colour changes once per section (5 changes, not every scene) so viewers can focus on the words: hook in deep blue & magenta, the law in deep teal, the quiz in black & lime, "why it matters" in magenta & navy, the fix in deep violet, then back to blue & magenta for the close. Dark, calm backgrounds with no pattern; bright colour only on key words. Bebas Neue headlines, DM Sans body, DM Mono labels, Fraunces italic asides; progress bar along the top.
Topic	Copyright in work you commission (logos, websites, photos): the creator owns it unless it's assigned in writing.

Thumbnails

Left: YouTube thumbnail 1280×720 (thumbnails/case-08_thumbnail_1280x720.png). Right: vertical cover for Shorts / Reels / TikTok 1080×1920 (thumbnails/case-08_cover_1080x1920.png).

Titles

Recommended: Paid for Your Logo? You Might Not Own It Copyright for UK Small Businesses

Alternative: Who Owns Your Logo, Website and Photos? (Copyright Quiz, UK)

Add the UK flag emoji at the end of the title when posting.

Hook (first 3–7 seconds)

"You paid eight hundred quid for your logo. So why might it still belong to the designer? Here's the bit nobody tells you. Paying for it isn't the same as owning it." (On screen: YOU PAID £800 FOR YOUR LOGO. → SO WHY MIGHT IT STILL BELONG TO THE DESIGNER? → PAYING ≠ OWNING.)

Script: scene by scene

Time	Section	On screen	Voiceover
0:00–0:04	The logo Deep blue & magenta	YOU PAID £800 FOR YOUR LOGO.	You paid eight hundred quid for your logo.
0:04–0:08	The logo Deep blue & magenta	SO WHY MIGHT IT STILL BELONG TO THE DESIGNER?	So why might it still belong to the designer?
0:08–0:12	The catch Deep blue & magenta	THE BIT NOBODY TELLS YOU · PAYING ≠ OWNING.	Here's the bit nobody tells you. Paying for it isn't the same as owning it.
0:12–0:20	The law Deep teal	GOV.UK / Intellectual Property Office quote on commissioned works → UNLESS IT'S IN WRITING.	The government's own guidance says it. If you commission work, the person who made it owns the copyright, unless you agree otherwise in writing.
0:20–0:25	Quiz Black & lime	QUICK QUIZ · WHO OWNS IT?	Quick quiz. Who owns it? Guess before the answer lands.
0:25–0:31	Quiz · 1 Black & lime	Q1 YOUR LOGO (freelance designer) → THE DESIGNER (×) · unless there's a written assignment	Number one. Your logo, made by a freelance designer. Who owns the copyright? The designer. Unless you've got it in writing.
0:31–0:38	Quiz · 2 Black & lime	Q2 YOUR WEBSITE (web agency) → THE AGENCY (×) · or joint owners if your staff helped	Number two. Your website, built by an agency. The agency. Or it's shared, if your own team helped build it.
0:38–0:45	Quiz · 3 Black & lime	Q3 PRODUCT PHOTOS (freelance photographer) → THE PHOTOGRAPHER (×) · unless there's a written assignment	Number three. Your product photos, taken by a photographer. The photographer.
0:45–0:52	Quiz · 4 Black & lime	Q4 STAFF'S WORK (employee, as part of their job) → YOU (✓)	Number four. Something your own employee made, as part of their job. That one's usually yours.
0:52–0:58	What you have Magenta & navy	PERMISSION. NOT OWNERSHIP. · a limited licence	So what have you actually got? Usually, permission. Not ownership. You can use it for what you paid for. That's a licence. It's not the same thing.
0:58–1:06	Why it bites Magenta & navy	WHY IT BITES: 01 tweak or reuse it · 02 selling the business · 03 they reuse it → IT'S NOT YOURS TO DECIDE.	And that matters when you want to change it, or use it somewhere new. When you sell the business. Or when they reuse it for someone else.
1:06–1:16	The fix Deep violet & orange	THE FIX · GET IT IN WRITING. · copyright assignment, signed · final AND source files · kept with the invoice · CDPA 1988 s.90(3)	The fix? Get it in writing. A copyright assignment, signed by them. Covering the final files and the source files. And keep it with the invoice, where you can find it.
1:16–1:21	The fix Deep violet & orange	ALREADY PAID WITHOUT ONE? IT'S NOT TOO LATE TO ASK.	Already paid without one? It's not too late. Ask for it now, while you're on good terms.
1:21–1:29	The fix Deep violet & orange	Product: WHO OWNS WHAT · ALL SUPPLIERS (Kite & Co logo: assignment signed · Northgate website: no assignment on file · Fenwick photos: licence only)	That's what Dogetlawyer's for. Every supplier who's made something for you, and whether you actually own it, or just have a licence.
1:29–1:33	The fix Deep violet & orange	SO YOU KNOW WHAT'S ACTUALLY YOURS.	So you know what's actually yours.

Time	Section	On screen	Voiceover
1:33–1:38	Your turn Deep blue & magenta	WHICH ONE SURPRISED YOU? 1 · 2 · 3 · 4	Be honest. Which one surprised you? Comment one, two, three or four.
1:38–1:45	Dogetlawyer Deep blue & magenta	DOGETLAWYER · OWN WHAT YOU PAID FOR. · dogetlawyer.com · LINK IN BIO · fine print	Check who owns what at dogetlawyer.com. Link in bio.

Voiceover: clean read for the voice artist

Delivery: friendly and slightly incredulous for the hook, quick-fire quiz-show rhythm for the four questions (a beat before each answer) then calm and practical for the fix. About 160 words per minute

You paid eight hundred quid for your logo. So why might it still belong to the designer? Here's the bit nobody tells you. Paying for it isn't the same as owning it. The government's own guidance says it. If you commission work, the person who made it owns the copyright, unless you agree otherwise in writing. Quick quiz. Who owns it? Guess before the answer lands. Number one. Your logo, made by a freelance designer. Who owns the copyright? The designer. Unless you've got it in writing. Number two. Your website, built by an agency. The agency. Or it's shared, if your own team helped build it. Number three. Your product photos, taken by a photographer. The photographer. Number four. Something your own employee made, as part of their job. That one's usually yours. So what have you actually got? Usually, permission. Not ownership. You can use it for what you paid for. That's a licence. It's not the same thing. And that matters when you want to change it, or use it somewhere new. When you sell the business. Or when they reuse it for someone else. The fix? Get it in writing. A copyright assignment, signed by them. Covering the final files and the source files. And keep it with the invoice, where you can find it. Already paid without one? It's not too late. Ask for it now, while you're on good terms. That's what Dogetlawyer's for. Every supplier who's made something for you, and whether you actually own it, or just have a licence. So you know what's actually yours. Be honest. Which one surprised you? Comment one, two, three or four. Check who owns what at dogetlawyer.com. Link in bio.

Description (YouTube / Shorts; trim for Instagram & TikTok)

You paid £800 for your logo, so it's yours, right? Not necessarily. Under UK law, when you commission a logo, website or photos from a freelancer or agency, the person who made it usually owns the copyright, unless it's assigned to you in writing.

Quick quiz: who owns your logo, your website, your product photos and your staff's work? (Answers in the video.)

Without a written assignment you may only have permission to use it, not ownership. That matters when you want to change it, sell your business, or stop them reusing it.

The fix:

1. Get a copyright assignment, in writing and signed
2. Make sure it covers final files AND source files
3. Keep it with the invoice

→ Check who owns what at dogetlawyer.com (link in bio)

0:00 You paid £800 for your logo · 0:12 What GOV.UK says · 0:20 Quiz: who owns it? · 0:52 Permission vs ownership · 1:06 The fix · 1:21 Keeping track · 1:33 Your turn

Sources: GOV.UK, Intellectual Property Office, "Ownership of copyright works"; Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, ss.11 and 90(3). General position in the UK; outcomes turn on the facts and the contract. All names and figures shown are fictional examples. Dogetlawyer is contract management software for UK small businesses, not a substitute for legal advice.

Tags

who owns the copyright, logo copyright UK, commissioned work copyright, copyright assignment, freelancer copyright, website copyright, photo copyright, intellectual property UK, IP ownership, copyright for small business, graphic designer copyright, CDPA 1988, small business UK, branding

Hashtags

#smallbusinessuk #copyright #logodesign #intellectualproperty #ukbusiness #branding

Pinned comment

Which one surprised you: 1, 2, 3 or 4? (add a pointing-down emoji when posting)

SEO keywords used (and where)

Keyword	Where it appears
who owns the copyright	On-screen panel in every quiz question; spoken; tags
logo copyright	Hook (0:00–0:08), Q1, title, thumbnail
commissioned work / commission	GOV.UK quote and VO (0:12); description
copyright assignment / in writing	The fix (1:06); GOV.UK quote; description
website / photos / freelancer	Quiz Q2 and Q3; tags
permission vs ownership (licence)	0:52 scene; description
intellectual property	Description, tags, hashtags

Sources & compliance

- GOV.UK (Intellectual Property Office), "Ownership of copyright works": the creator owns commissioned work "and not you the commissioner, unless you otherwise agree it in writing"; courts may imply only a limited licence; joint ownership can arise; employers own employees' work made in the course of employment. CDPA 1988 s.11 and s.90(3) (assignment must be in writing and signed). General position, hedged in the video. All names/figures fictional; no statistics; no prices or offers; standard fine print on the closing card.